aid.

The immense possibilities of the prairies as a food-growing country have been carefully considered by government officials. Not only will vast tracts be made available to the solders on a homestead basis, but the federal and provincial governments will give financial assistance in equipping the new farms with proper machinery. Long-term loans will be provided through rural credits systems.

Extension of manufactures, as well as agriculture, in Western Canada is anticipated. One of the first questions taken up by the interprovincial conference whitch has been in progress at Ottawa was the transfer of control of natural resources of the prairie provinces from federal to provincial governments. It is urged that the transfer, for years an unsettled matter, would make it possible for individual provinces to develop mining and other industries on their own initiative.

FOOD RIOTS REVEAL SERIOUS CONDITIONS

TOKIO. Dec. 13. (Correspondence of the Associated Press.)—The recent food riots in Japan are dangerous symptoms of a widening social cleavage, in the opinion of Toshio Fujiwara, a leading business man of Tokio and an authority on social questions. He contrasts the conditions under which the working class of Japan live with the enormous profits of great enterprises, and sees in the ostentation of the countiess war millionaires a social irirtant which is causing the theories of western agitators to work on the minds of the Japanese wage earners.

Mr. Fujiwara thinks Japanese skilled workmen have already acquired ideas of the working people of western countries. He adds: "These ideas, unfortunately mostly in a wrong sense, are steadily working upon the minds of our laboring people, especially those in big cities like Tokio. Osaka, etc." He continues:

"Leaders of the naften are therefore strongly urged to adopt measures for relief of the general discontent so that disaster may be avoided. Should this general discontent of the working class be left without remedy, we may have more serious cutbursts and these may bring about a catastrophe to the empire."

Mr. Fujiwara urges that Japanese

oring about a catastrophe to the empire."

Mr. Fujiwara urges that Japanese statesmen learn a lesson from American and British statesmen in the handling of national problems, especially food problems. Improvement of living conditions of the working classes in Japan, he believed to be urgently imperative and this reform, he thought, should be inaugurated in the big cities of Tokio and Osaka.

VAST WHEAT ACREAGE RECOVERED FROM HUNS

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—More than 137,500 acres of wheat were recovered from German occupied territory in France by the British and French armies in the great offensive that ended the war, says the New York federal food board. This is believed by the food officials to have materially contributed to the food crisis which helped to bring Germany to her knees. contributed to the food crisis which helped to bring Germany to her knees. This wheat was harvested chiefly by the French. The work of nearly 17,000 men was required in the harvesting. The binding machines and threshing machines were supplied by the French office of agricultural reconstruction, and when the harvesting was completed the machines were sold at reduced prices to farmers or groups of farmers who had been victims of the war.

Disposition of German Colo. nies Gives Rise to Needed Change in British Holding SYDNEY, Australia, Dec. 13. (Corre-pondence of the Associated Press.)-Pronouncement by Arthur J. Balfour.

spondence of the Associated Press.)—
Pronouncement by Arthur J. Balfour.
British secretary of state for foreign affairs, that Germany's colonies will not be returned to her after the war revives in Australia and New Zealand animated discussion of the future of all the islands in the Pacific south of the equator.

Whatever conclusion is reached by the allies at the peace conference as to the disposition of German New Guinea and German Samoa not to mention the Marshall. Caroline and Ladrone groups, it is generally admitted that an entire recasting of the various administrations of the British islands is needed to develop their great potential wealth, afford security for trade and insure adequate defense.

It is believed that a federation of all the British archipelago under a central nuthority having its sear of government at the most convenient center will eventuate after the war.

Thus in effect a new state would be created which might be called the British Pacific federation and might be administered by a governor-general or high commissioner would not be concerned with the local governmental affairs of any particular group but with the federation as a whole. He might be assisted by a council composed of appointed officials representatives elected by each island group, and trade commissioners representing Great Britain, Australia, New Zealand and Canada. Local legislatures would, under such a scheme as this, have as large a measure of self-government.

It is pointed out here, however, that if the British islands are federated, means of communication between them must be provided in order that their administration and general welfare may obtain. Existing steamer services radiate from Sydney in Australia and Auckland in New Zealand, but groups served by any one line have no connecting link with other adjacent islands served by other lines, or with Chine and India, save by way of Sydney.

Attention is called to the now well-known fact that just prior to the war Germany was engaged in linking up her Pacific island possessions with the ceast with a view to the monopoly of the copra trade; and it was argued from this that if there should be a comprehensive British steamship service with Singapore at one end and New Zealand at the other, insuring a continuous supply of Asiatic labor for the islands it would greatly contribute to the material benefit of the proposed federation. Not only will German New Guinea or Kaiser Wilhelm land, and the German Samoa be disposed of at the peace table, but the exceedingly valuable phosphate Island, Nauru, the German Solomons, the Blamarck archipelage, the Marshalls, Carolines and Ladrones.

Druggists Say Readjustment of Cost Not Thought of for Many Months.

CHICAGO, Dec. 13.-A downward swing in drug prices as a result of peace is so remote as to be classed an impossibility by leading dealers in the industry. They not only predict that present prices will centinue for from six to nine months, but that even then readjustments will be slow and largely contingent upon the availability of cargo space to and from European ports and upon possible accumulations of crude drug stocks at the source of supply.

ment restrictions have been lifted and the predicted building boom in America is under way. Just when this will be however, leaders in the trade hesitate to predict. They say there must first be a diverting of labor and materials from war work to peace work, and that this change will be gradual. Moreover, consumers of paint and paint materials are not expected to become heavy buyers until prices decline with the disappearance of wartime conditions. The whole industry, in fact, is awaiting developments, but every producer is looking ahead and getting ready to supply the increased demand expected when the situation clears.
